Learning From Leaders II – 2021 edition July 8th with Captain Jarrod Sergi, Norfolk VA

Fire Service Mortar – The Officer

This program is designed to be a no-nonsense approach to company officer leadership. No theory here, just realistic and practical ways proven to build an effective group of performers within your team. I will bring previous military experience as well as experience in my current role to reinforce the importance of unit cohesion and how to achieve it. We will talk about team building and relationships, conflict management, accountability and more. This class is meant to inspire action and produce results in your company and your department as a whole. You will be given tools today to make immediate change tomorrow.

High Rise / Fire Protection Systems

This class will cover high rise fire operations in detail, especially when it comes to designing and implementing an effective policy. We will cover specific company assignments and best practices that each should perform. There will be a focused discussion on engine company operations at these high-rise events. Hose deployments, standpipe systems, water supply, strategy/tactics, and more will be covered. In addition to the high rise conversation we will cover a wide variety of fire protection systems that you will see in the field. The operation and design of many fire protection systems will be part of this class. Sprinklers, smoke management, fire pumps, pump room components and more. This class is sure to increase your confidence in your departments approach to high rise fire operations and make you more comfortable when recognizing and operating various types of fire protection systems.
